

Hector Schamis

Adjunct Professor at the Georgetown University Center for Latin American Studies. He holds a PhD in Political Science from Columbia University. He had previously taught at Brown and Cornell Universities, and had been a researcher at the Woodrow Wilson Center, Cambridge University and the Central European University in Budapest. He is author of several books and articles on authoritarianism, democracy, populism, and political economy. He has worked in collaboration with donor governments, universities and international agencies in the design and implementation of programs and workshops on corruption, privatization strategies and electoral management in new democracies. Currently, he writes for "El País" newspaper, and offers expert comments at NTN24, Bogota's news channel.

Politics

Transparency

Campaign

Vote

Digital

Democracy

Integrity

Elections

Institutions

Citizenship

Technology

#9ForoDemocracia